Now With F.M.L.

We were hearing about "the State of the State" from Gov. Dolph Briscoe, the "1973 Texas Legislature" from Lt-Gov. Bill Hobby and rounds of stuff about new legislation and shop talk in Dallas.

Texas Press people gathered in Dallas Friday and Saturday for a mid-winter conclave. Death of former President Lyndon Johnson affected the gathering of news people and politicans -- U.S. Senate and Congressional delegations through state legislators.

So much change is underway in Austin or proposed in a new Texas constitution that this gathering had an electricity about it greater than normal presstime voltage.

A few of us discussed the proposed newspaper legislation for open meetings, open records and reporter shield laws.

But you read about this stuff all the time.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Bob Alexander, area development director of Dallas Symphony, writes of the orchestra's appreciation for the enthusiasm here a second year running. They apparently are taken for granted in most places once they appear.

This says professionals accustomed to all manner of reception are impressed with people who appreciate the work they do. This project is worthy of the Milam community's carryong on. It has been turned toward the third year.

It is a great pleasure to see the response to what once was considered impossible. Dreamers doers like NOW are just dumb enough to try.

High School Students View Amnesty Problem

By Marilyn Hauk

Tuesday night President Nixon gave the long awaited announcement concerning the fate of our involvment in the Vietnamese war. The ceasefire agreement, beginning Saturday, January 27, and the promised return of our prisoners held in Southeast Asia, brought response from nearly all who would have had an active part in the next few years and high school students who faced military service in the next few years.

Some reacted with momentous joy, some with an indifferent shrug of the shoulders, but nearly all in this area had some opinion on a proposed end of the war.

A poll was taken of those eligible for military service in the next two or three years to see how President Nixon's Tuesday night speech changed or confirmed their feelings dealing with the war.

The point most disagreed on was that of granting amnesty to those that deserted or avoided the draft by fleeing to other countries. Those against amensty generally felt that those not willing to defend America in time of need did not deserve the right to have her benefits in time of peace. "I think deserters should not be allowed back in the country. They took an oath before they deserted." remarked Gwen Ivey.

About half of those participating in the poll had the opposite view on the point of amnesty. These felt that the persons now stranded in other countries defended their view of this war by simply refusing to fight.

Gary Strutz summed it up in saying "Because they didn't want to fight doesn't mean it's not still their country, too."

A few of the participants felt the need for conditional amnesty. "We shouldn't let them back in unconditionally," said Randy Tumlinson. "They should have to work in the government or something to earn the right to stay here."

An opinion shared by nearly everyone is that the peace we are experiencing at this moment is a very temporary one. Perhaps this feeling stems from the fact that our 12 year involvment in Viet Nam is at least more than half the life of every student in our area high schools. "I can't remember," commented Mellissa Lester, "when the war wasn't going on."

Gary Trdy's idea was a basis on which the optimistic few stood. "I think we can have lasting peace if we handle it right."

This step by our national government did not alter the opinions of many. Despite the efforts by our government many felt the war should have been ended long ago. There were also some that felt President Nixon kept his promise of ending the war and did so as they expected he would.

POLL-TAKER Marilyn Hauk questions Yoe High students who had been faced with military service in the near future, on their reactions to news of the Vietnam war settlement announced Tuesday evening by President Nixon. Though all welcomed the idea of peace, reactions varied on the question of amnesty for deserters from the draft.

Minor Injuries Reported In 2 Car Accident

A two-car collision about 8 a.m. Friday sent one woman to a local hospital and heavily damaged both vehicles, according to investigating DPS Patrolman Milton Wright of Cameron.

Mrs. Grace S. Perez of Buckholts was traveling east on Farm Road 485 when she pulled out in front of a car driven by Mrs. Joyce Angell of Cameron, traveling south on Highway 77.

Mrs. Perez was taken by ambulance to St. Edward Hospital where she was treated for minor injuries and released.

Another accident was reported Thursday, when a pickup ran off Highway 79 four miles east of Gause in a rainstorm. Driver of the pickup, Homer Walton, was not injured, but his vehicle was demolished when it turned over.

Date Set For Bond Election

Cameron school trustees have called a bond election for Thursday, February 15 for the amount of $885,000 to be used for new construction and remodeling of the school plant.

This will be the second bond election called in less than six months, the first issue failing to pass in October, 1972. The issue then was called for $1,235,000.

The new issue will be for some $340,000 less than the previous one called last year.

Plans call for construction of an ag addition, necessary because the space the department has now does not come up to standards set by the State.

Other new construction would include classrooms and lab rooms for Yoe High School, and four new classrooms for kindergarten classes at Ben Milam School. Increasing kindergarten classes are expected in the future following the Legislature's making kindergarten compulsory.

Other work would include the remodeling of rest rooms at Ada Henderson School and at Yoe High. Also added are furniture and equipment for the new classrooms.

Other construction would be a new physical education plant for high school. The old gym would be used for girls' physical education.

Totals for these would be $748,450, with $74,845 added for contingencies and escalation and $61,705 for professional fees.

Trustees noted that the program represents the "bare bones" of the first bond election, which called for extensive remodeling of buildings, new construction, and a "skin" added to the exterior of all buildings.

The Shelf: On Or Off...

The later years, just before retirement or during retirement, was one point of remarks by the head of Austin State Hospital at a club meeting the other day.

Dr. Luis H. Laosa, superintendent of Austin State Hospital, said we "are taught to deal with all stages of growing up, educated for adult roles, but not for the drastic change that comes with retirement."

He is right. The active elderly, and that could be in the 70s for the physically, mentally alert, are somewhat put on a shelf, and if they have influence, they can become a negative force because of the fear of being left out. They can easily be a positive force.

The problem is the older active may not understand the activities in the main stream that only a few years ago may have been easier to understand. Things change.

Dr. Laosa's remarks are timely in this area where Central Texans are doing a lot of catching up to the latter 20th Century.

If older people think they "are on the shelf," there are ways to get themselves off.

More Revenue Shared...

Cameron is in a unique position, one of 134 towns in a program called Annual Arrangements Program, working through Housing & Urban Development.

This was announced at City Council sessions Tuesday.

If this is somewhat like revenue sharing, cleared through the Central Texas Council of Governments, it will be a landmark approach to annual budgeting for cities.

Cameron can, of course, use the income. It will protect against increasing local municipal taxes and allow room for improvement in school tax financing, for example, in a renewed proposal for about $900,000 for Cameron Independent School District, which is minimal in all the needs of the system.

Such a city financing program can help do a lot of things for the residents. Streets, parks, recreation are still in need of considerable development.

It is timely that Cameron be included in what is apparently like the revenue sharing program just begun this year.

Australia's State Theater Now National Showpiece

By John Roubicek

SYDNEY

An era of "fabulous folly" has been saved from the wreckers' hammer here.

Described by Britains' poet laureat, Sir John Betjemen, as a monument to "that foolish fabulous decade--the 1920s," Sydents' State Theater, complete with lavatories described as "Each having a different mood" has been declared a national showpiece by the National Trust of Australia.

Sited in the center of Sydneys' busy downtown shopping are, the 11-story office block and cinema has been given an "A" classification by the trust, meaning that it should be preserved at all costs.

During a recent visit to Australia, Sir John, on a program on national television said: "I should think that this must be the most luxurious, lavish and splendid super cinema left in the world."

The building, opened on June 5, 1929, is, according to the National Trust "A major building of its type."

"The cinema baroque style found little favor in the United Kingdom and this cinema forms a direct link with the great picture palaces of the U. S. A.

In its description of the building the trust says of the main auditorium: "A vast dome covers the expanse and the two tiers of seating are suspended without ground supports of any kind. A 20,000 piece chanderlier hangs from a recessed eclipse in the dome.

"The curved rear wall is broken by two ornate metal gates and paired female figures holding aloft lights decorated with zodiac signs and sun bursts.

"The proscenium arch is covered with an internally lit crown of metal and glass from which fall swags of crimson velvet.

Intergrated in the scheme are busts of famous composers, copies of Greek and Roman sculpture and smaller niche objects in plaster, multi-colored marble and alabaster.

"The color scheme is honey-beige, rose pink, and apple green..."

On those famous lavatories the trust is quite specific.

"The lavatories deserve special mention. A different mood is struck in each one to give an infinite variety and astound and delight the patrons."

There are in fact six separate lavatories. Three for men and three for women.

The trust pamphlet: "For men: Pioneer Room- Fake Beams and half timbering. Carved period furniture and prints of the founding ot the Australian states.

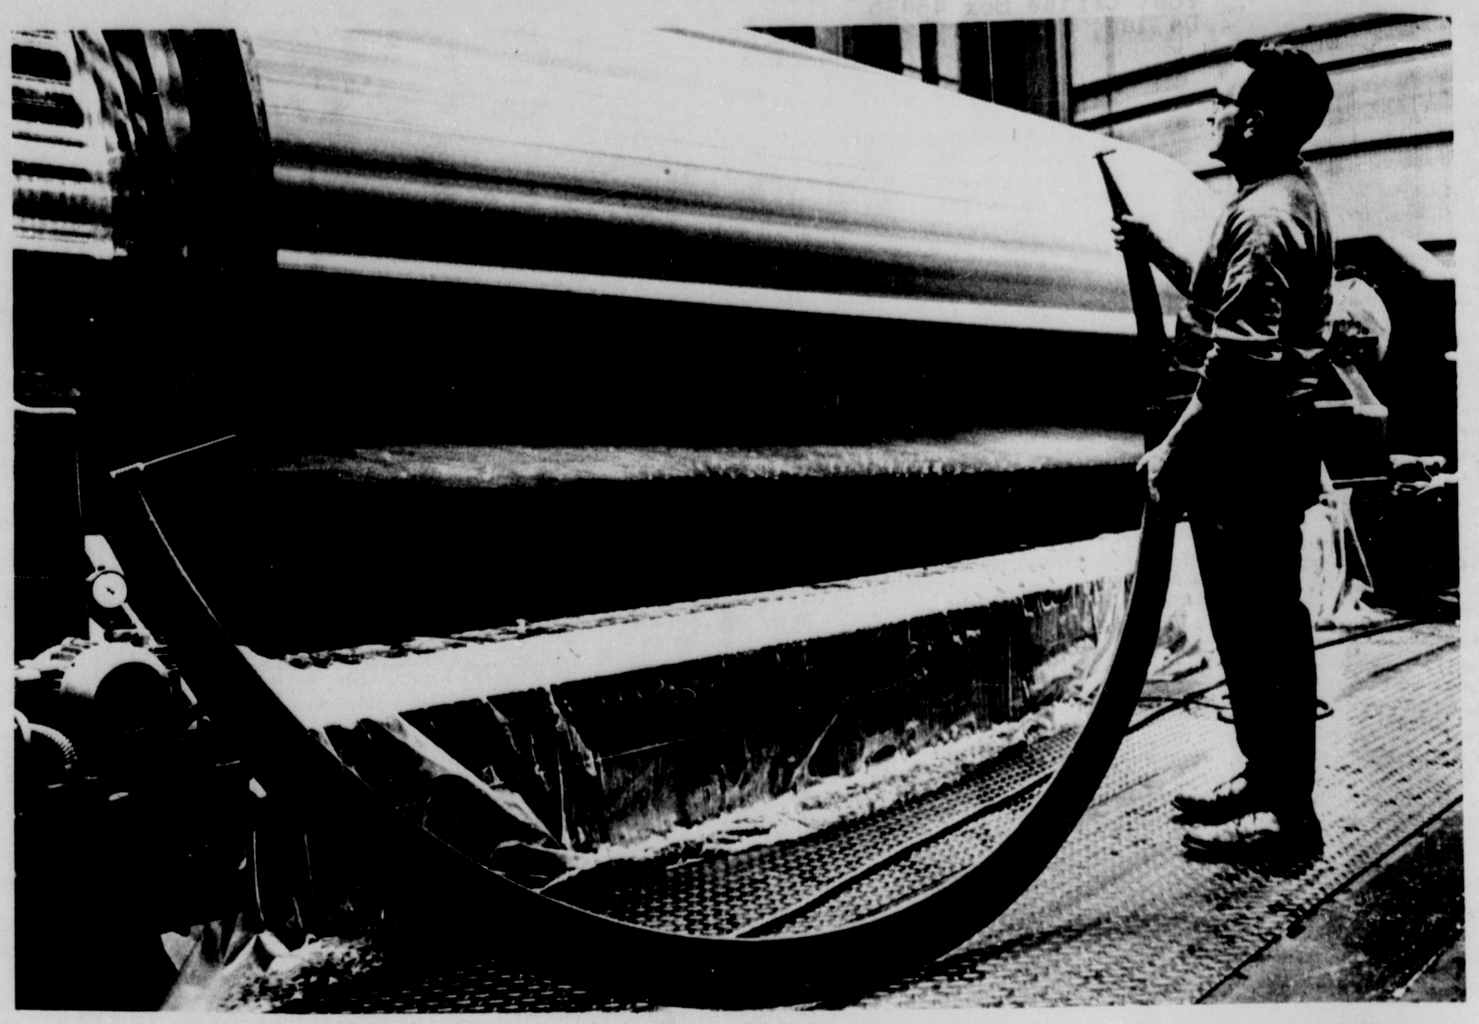
College Room-- Wood panelling and gothic fireplace some of the decoration is gone and the intent was a stylistic reference to Oxford and Cambridge, with specific naming of Sydneys' great public schools.

Empire Builders room-- Wood panelling with portraits of "empire" figures together with coats of arms of various dominions.

"For Women: " Pompador room. French pretty with some curious brass furniture.

Futurish Room - Appears to have lost most of its original character but still contains examples of advanced twenties design in some furniture and mirrors.

Butterfly Room - Unfortunately, the murals and wallpaper have been stripped or painted over. The Butterfly motifs remain in mirrors and splendid butterfly lights of colored glass.



SEVEN-FOOT MICROMETER — It could be used to measure Wilt the Stilt's height to within 1/1000th of an inch, but instead it ensures absolute roundness of a backup roll on the 220-inch hot reversing mill at Aluminum Company of America's Davenport (Iowa) Works. The perfect roundness is required to give uniformity of thickness of the aluminum plate from the huge rolling mill, the world's largest. The extra-wide aluminum plate is in heavy demand for tanks used in the liquefied natural gas industry. Alcoa operates its largest domestic refinery and smelter at Point Comfort and Rockdale, respectively. (Alcoa Photo)

Austin Loses 'Personality In Lyndon B. Johnson

By Bill Boykin

This city lost a part of its "personality" last week. Most Austin Citizens acted sophisticated about the fact that President Lyndon Baines Johnson was seen frequently at public events... but his personality gave the entire area a certain glamor that will be lost with his passing.

He had made frequent appearances recently--the Cotton Bowl, Civil Rights forum, Governor Briscoe's inauguration, and an economic seminar at San Marcos.

Yes, Austin and Texas will miss LBJ.

He did not try to dominate the show when he appeared publicly, did not make "news" by voicing opinions on everything, but his influence was felt in many important ways.

During last year's political campaigns in Texas, he was on the phone raising money, offering advice--supporting those who had been loyal to him during his political career.

The Texas Democratic party will miss LBJ.

Although it will not be listed in his biography, Lyndon Baines Johnson was a journalist.

He wrote a book. He helped write and produce several television news speciais. Most of all, he "Made" news during his entire lifetime.

His daughter, Mrs. Lucy Nugent, likes to point out that her father was "surrounded by journalists."

"My father had to live with journalists all of his life," she said recently. "My mother was a journalism graduate of the University of Texas. My sister wrote for major magazines, and I've enjoyed doing some writing."

Men who influenced him on many major decisions were journalists...Bill Moyers, George Christian, Tom Johnson and many more. He confided in many Texas newspaper editors, Art Kowert, Bob Jackson, Bill Hobby and others.

Texas Journalists will miss LBJ.

He refused to let his illness slow him down.

His last public appearance was a tree planting ceremony near his home with Lady Bird. He had spent an active Christmas holiday with his wife, daughters, their husbands and children.

He attended the funeral of the 14 young people who had been killed in the bus-truck accident and the funeral of President Harry S. Truman less than a month ago.

His family will miss LBJ.

President Johnson's political career will continue to be an inspiration to young people interested in government and politics.

He came from a family of public servants, but hundreds of college students in this state look at his career and contemplate the "path to the presidency."

He was first a young school teacher, then youth administrator, aide to a Congressman, Senator, Vice-President then President of the most powerful nation in the world.

Yes, Lyndon Baines Johnson made history interesting for Texas.

Texas will miss LBJ.

ABORTION LAW STRUCK

The U. S. Supreme Court voted 7-2 to strike down the state's abortion statute. Holding that medical abortion in the first six months of pregnancy should be a private matter between a woman and her physician, the high court ended a controversy begun in 1970 when "Jane Roe" a pregnant, unmarried woman from Dallas took the abortion argument to the federal courts.

Ironically Miss Roe, as she was named to protect her identity, won her case, but had the baby.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill for evaluation of the ruling and for alternatives open to Texas in light of the high court decision.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, however, said that "the best solution is one in which the state is neutral on the subject. I believe the medical profession of Texas will respond to the decision and will treat abortion as a medical matter in a responsible way."

ENGINEERS ADVISE

Legislators last week were offered the expertise of a group of engineers on "broadly defined areas of environmental protection and other areas of public concern.

The Texas Society of Professional Engineers told Texas House and Senate members that 700 members of that association were available for "factual presentationa" before committee hearings on air pollution, water pollution, liquid and solid wastes, insecticides, and pesticides, health, safty and mony other categories.

TOO MANY SCHOOLS?

Texas may be expanding educational facilities to the extent that the quality of education may be diluted, while the taxpayer keeps digging deeper in his pocketbook to pay the bills.

Opinion was expressed here by Wales Madden, an Amarillo attorney, who is a member of the Coordination Board, Texas College and University System. Madden told CB members "educators know that increased funding is dependent upon growing enrollments. With institutions planning independently and on ad hoc basis for enrolling the same students, and with there being fewer students to spread among the colleges, we may endanger the critical mass of students, faculty, facilities, equipment and libraries established at such high cost and hard effort in our existing institutions."

Madden placed part of the blame on local pressure on state legislators, who feel duty bound to try to create by statute a junior or senior college or technical training facility in their communities. Madden urged CB members to moderate the present expansion trend "until we determine fully what the needs are and where we are going."

APPOINTMENTS

The Texas Senate approved appointment of Mark W. White, a Houston lawyer, as Governor Briscoe's nominee to serve as Secretary of State. White's term of office runs concurrently with that of the Governor.

Briscoe also named Judge Max Rogers of Huntsville to be presiding judge of the 2nd Administrative Judicial District of Texas and Curtiss Brown of Houston to be Associate Justice of the 14th Court of Civil Appeals. Brown will fill the unexpired term of Judge John M. Barron of Houston, who resigned.

The new governor also appointed Mack Wallace of Athens as his administrative assistant to handle legal matters in the chief executive's office. Wallace had been serving as district attorney for Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties.

NEW CLASS WORKERS

Texas, under federal funding, will be the first state to start a training program for a new category of professional child care workers--the Child Development Associate (CDA).

The CDA program, a brainchild of the Office of Child Development in the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will be administered at the state level by the Office of Early Childhood Development, Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Four contracts have been awarded to Texas colleges and universities to organize the training programs based on proven competency in working with children rather than academic course work.

Schools holding the first four contracts are: 1. Tarrant County Junior College of Fort Worth; 2. Stephen F. Austin State University of Nacogdoches, Texas Christian University of Fort Worth and Texas Women's University of Denton; 3. Texas Southern University of Houston and 4. Texas A & I University of Kingsville and Pan American College of Edinburg.

SHORT SNORTS

Legislation has been introduced in the 63ed Legislature to make President Lyndon Johnson's birthday, Ausgust 27, a state holiday.

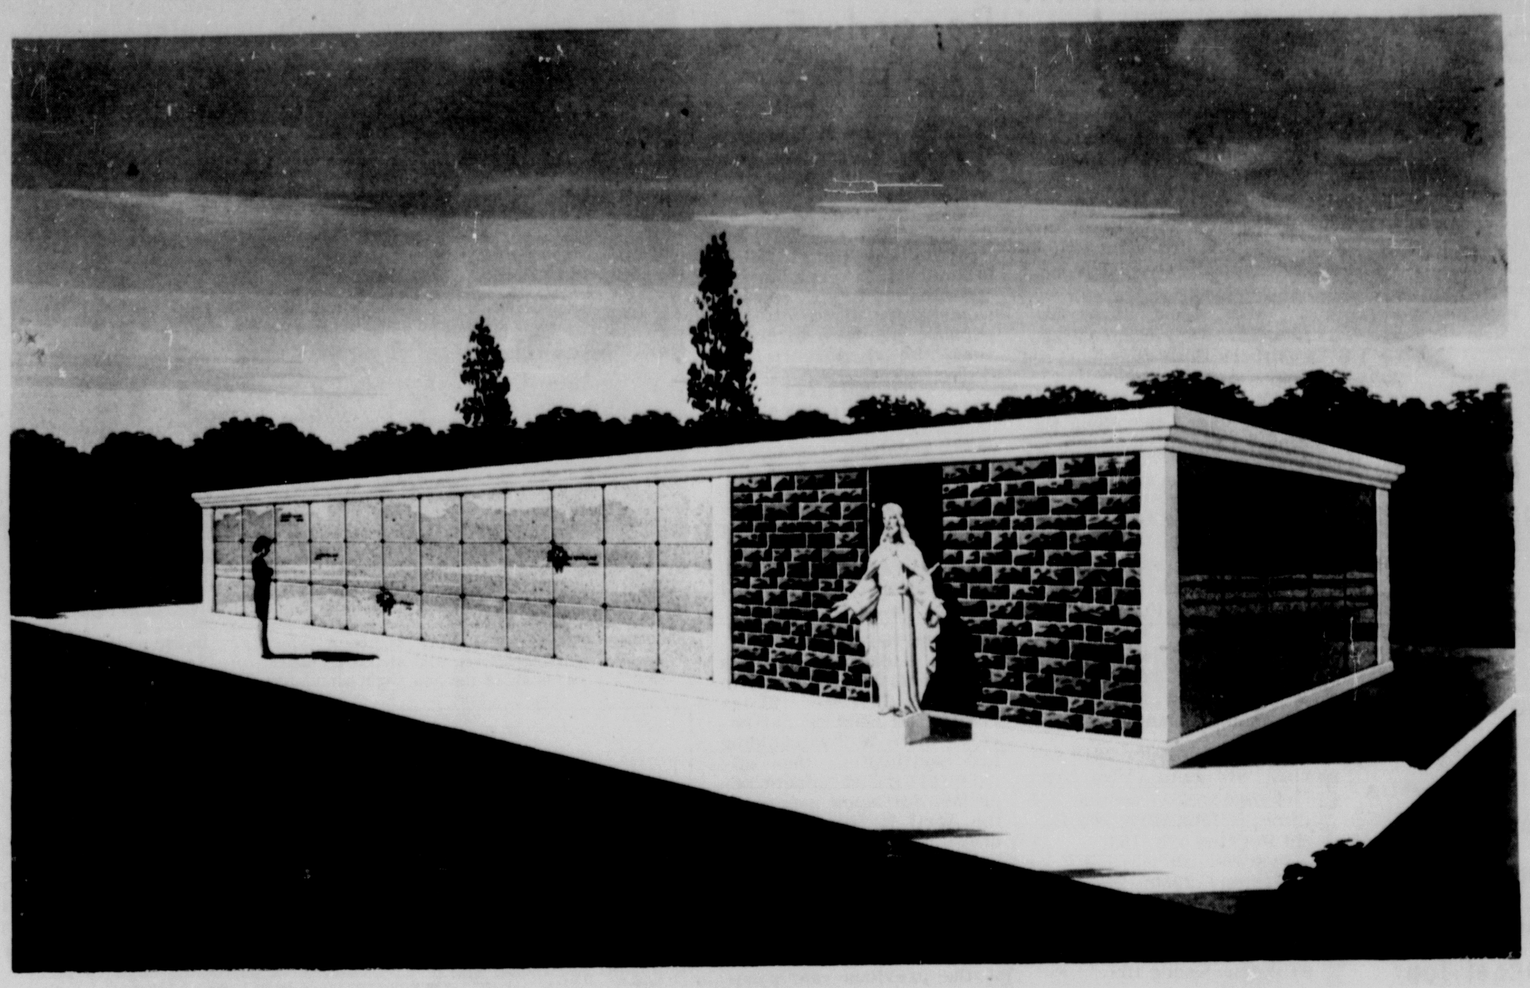
The Garden Memorial Provides For You....

The most secure protection for your loved ones in above-ground crypts. Architecture of a classic design will lend a classic sense of beauty that cannot be outdated. The finest and strongest building materials of steel, granite and reinforced concrete will be used with the most up-to-date construction methods to guarantee a building–not only of beauty–but of enduring dignity.

Endowed Perpetual Care

Perpetual care is assured for those you love. This memorial is protected by a trust fund, which provides maintenance forever.



Saint Monica's Church
P.O. Box 673 Cameron, Texas 76520

January 1973

My dear Parishioner,

The Parish Committee and I are pleased to announce that the building of a beautiful garden Memorial in St. Monica's Cemetery has received the approval of His Excellency Most Reverend Vincent M. Harris. We have entered into an agreement with Southern Memorial Company of New Orleans, La. to conduct a survey of our Catholic community to determine the size of a Garden Memorial. Construction would begin when the size of the memorial is arrived at upon the completion of the survey.

The Southern Memorial Company has already completed successful surveys in Wallis, Granger, Bryan, El Campo, Yoakum, Weimar, New Braunfels and Hearne and in about ninety other parishes throughout the country. These Garden Memorials are beautiful additions to the parish cemeteries.

Perpetual care of the Garden Memorial will be assured through an endowed care trust fund which is to be used solely for the care and maintenance of the Memorial. This fund will be comprised of a sizable portion of the proceeds from each selection made in the Garden Memorial. The interest and earnings from this fund will be more than ample to maintain the memorial through the years.

Representatives of Southern Memorial Company will make a survey of our parish to explain and answer questions about the memorial. Remember, the size of the Memorial will be determined by the number of Crypt selections made before construction begins. It will be worth your time to learn more about this worthy project by mailing in the enclosed card and envelope as soon as possible.

This is not only a dignified, sentimental method of burial, but would be a beautiful addition to St. Monica's Cemetery. It would also be a monument to the love and devotion of this generation.

We should all be very interested in this worthy project being a complete success.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Rev. John T. Geiser

This Beautiful

GARDEN MEMORIAL

With Perpetual Care

Will Be Built In St. Monica's Catholic Cemetery Cameron, Texas

Peace Of Mind

To provide for your loved ones a final resting place with crypts sheltered from unpleasant weather and with crypts protected from dampness and moisture, is a sincere expression of your reverence and love. Selection of such a memorial before need is a duty we owe to ourselves and our families. In addition, it affords the peace of mind that comes from the knowledge that personal obligation has been fulfilled . . . That those we love will not be faced with the responsibility of making such a decision during a period of emotional stress.

Crypt Burial Is Scriptual, Historical

Our Lord was laid in a rock-hewn crypt, and early Christians followed this custom. Wealthy people have used this type of burial almost entirely for many centuries and most of our national heroes are buried in stone tombs or mausoleums. The Garden Memorial, now for the first time, provides this desirable above ground form of burial at costs which compare with average under the ground burial.

The Better Way

Endowed care is assured for those you love. This Memorial will be protected by an irrevocable trust fund to provide continual maintenance. Crypt spaces can be purchased with only a small down payment and up to four years to pay the balance. As a far-thinking person you should know that a memorial estate in this magnificent memorial is well within the means of the average family. A practical investment . . . The program for the memorial crypts requires that all desired spaces be contracted for prior to the date of construction. Therefore, interment spaces are limited to those who make selections before construction begins. Provide now a final resting place for your loved ones in this imposing memorial.

The size of the memorial will be determined by the number of crypts reserved during this survey, before construction begins. Only those families who subscribe at this time will have memorial interment privileges. Various Pay Plans Available — Up To 4 Years to Pay.

The old saying "A civilization may be judged by the way they CARED for their dead" is coming back after decades.

Ancient history would be largely a myth but for the way the dead were cared for.

The magnitude of this Memorial is outstanding. It is by far the most modern, bold development conceived in this section.

IT IS WISE TO ACT NOW

All spaces will be reserved prior to date of construction. Therefore; space in the Garden Memorial are limited to those who make selections before construction begins.

St. Monica's Garden Memorial
P.O. Box 147
Cameron, Texas 76520

Without any obligation on my part . . . I would appreciate full information on the Garden Memorial.

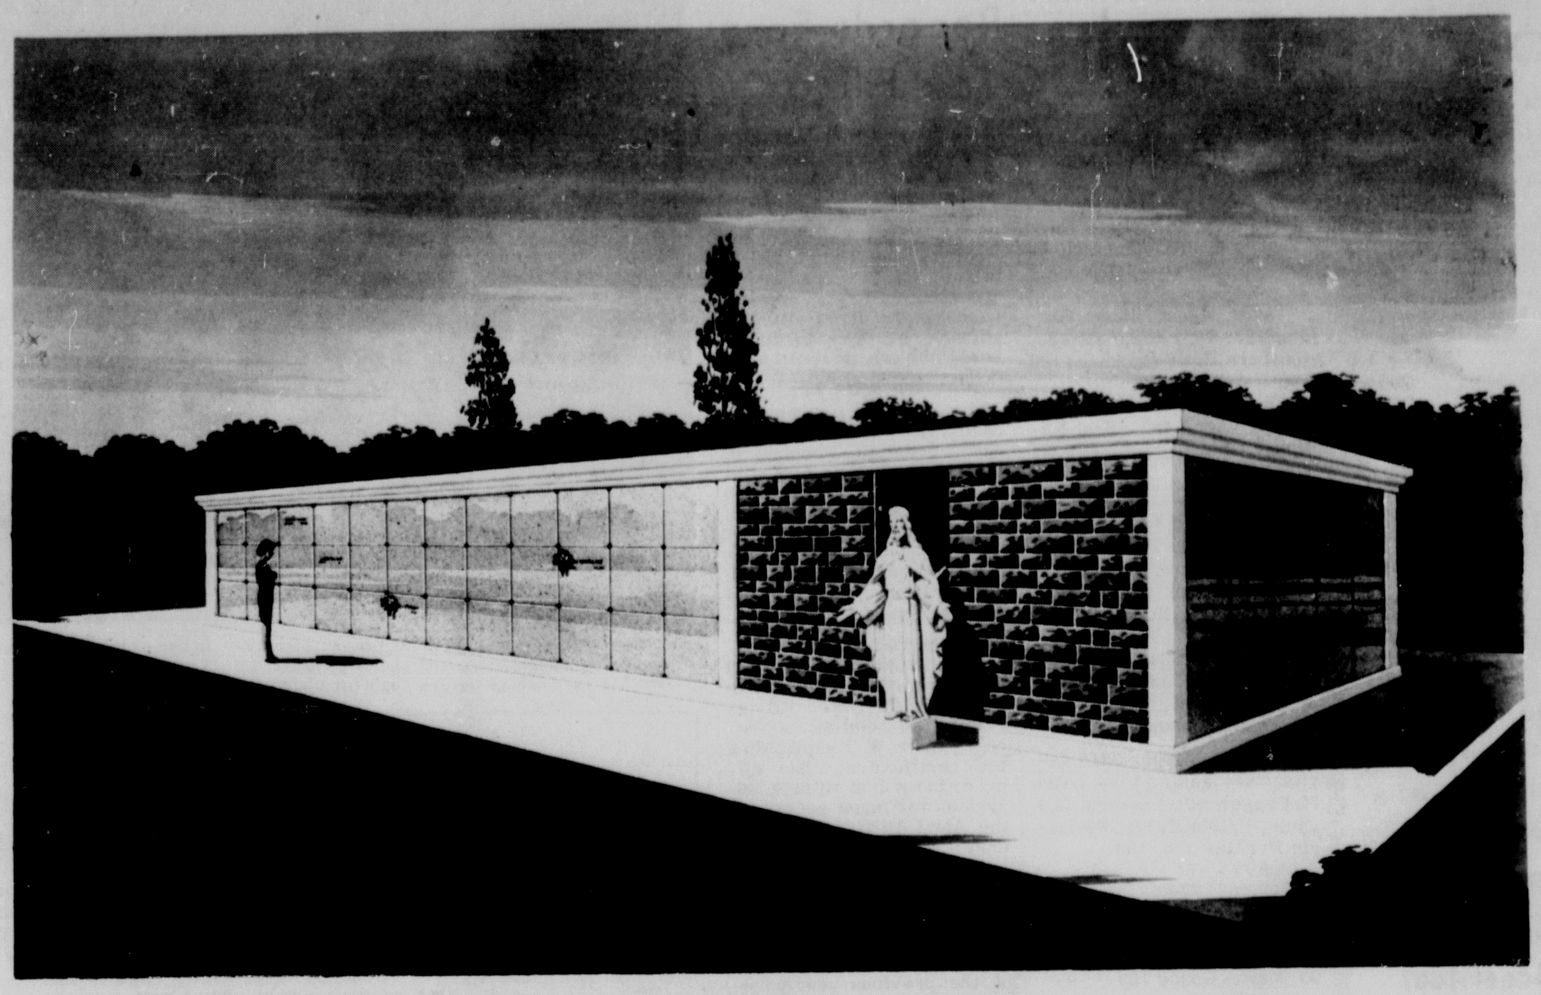
The Garden Memorial Provides For You....

The most secure protection for your loved ones in above-ground crypts. Architecture of a classic design will lend a classic sense of beauty that cannot be outdated. The finest and strongest building materials of steel, granite and reinforced concrete will be used with the most up-to-date construction methods to guarantee a building–not only of beauty–but of enduring dignity.

Endowed Perpetual Care

Perpetual care is assured for those you love. This memorial is protected by a trust fund, which provides maintenance forever.



Saint Monica's Church
P.O. Box 673 Cameron, Texas 76520

January 1973

My dear Parishioner,

The Parish Committee and I are pleased to announce that the building of a beautiful garden Memorial in St. Monica's Cemetery has received the approval of His Excellency Most Reverend Vincent M. Harris. We have entered into an agreement with Southern Memorial Company of New Orleans, La. to conduct a survey of our Catholic community to determine the size of a Garden Memorial. Construction would begin when the size of the memorial is arrived at upon the completion of the survey.

The Southern Memorial Company has already completed successful surveys in Wallis, Granger, Bryan, El Campo, Yoakum, Weimar, New Braunfels and Hearne and in about ninety other parishes throughout the country. These Garden Memorials are beautiful additions to the parish cemeteries.

Perpetual care of the Garden Memorial will be assured through an endowed care trust fund which is to be used solely for the care and maintenance of the Memorial. This fund will be comprised of a sizable portion of the proceeds from each selection made in the Garden Memorial. The interest and earnings from this fund will be more than ample to maintain the memorial through the years.

Representatives of Southern Memorial Company will make a survey of our parish to explain and answer questions about the memorial. Remember, the size of the Memorial will be determined by the number of Crypt selections made before construction begins. It will be worth your time to learn more about this worthy project by mailing in the enclosed card and envelope as soon as possible.

This is not only a dignified, sentimental method of burial, but would be a beautiful addition to St. Monica's Cemetery. It would also be a monument to the love and devotion of this generation.

We should all be very interested in this worthy project being a complete success.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Rev. John T. Geiser

This Beautiful

GARDEN MEMORIAL

With Perpetual Care

Will Be Built In St. Monica's Catholic Cemetery Cameron, Texas

Peace Of Mind

To provide for your loved ones a final resting place with crypts sheltered from unpleasant weather and with crypts protected from dampness and moisture, is a sincere expression of your reverence and love. Selection of such a memorial before need is a duty we owe to ourselves and our families. In addition, it affords the peace of mind that comes from the knowledge that personal obligation has been fulfilled . . . That those we love will not be faced with the responsibility of making such a decision during a period of emotional stress.

Crypt Burial Is Scriptual, Historical

Our Lord was laid in a rock-hewn crypt, and early Christians followed this custom. Wealthy people have used this type of burial almost entirely for many centuries and most of our national heroes are buried in stone tombs or mausoleums. The Garden Memorial, now for the first time, provides this desirable above ground form of burial at costs which compare with average under the ground burial.

The Better Way

Endowed care is assured for those you love. This Memorial will be protected by an irrevocable trust fund to provide continual maintenance. Crypt spaces can be purchased with only a small down payment and up to four years to pay the balance. As a far-thinking person you should know that a memorial estate in this magnificent memorial is well within the means of the average family. A practical investment . . . The program for the memorial crypts requires that all desired spaces be contracted for prior to the date of construction. Therefore, interment spaces are limited to those who make selections before construction begins. Provide now a final resting place for your loved ones in this imposing memorial.

The size of the memorial will be determined by the number of crypts reserved during this survey, before construction begins. Only those families who subscribe at this time will have memorial interment privileges. Various Pay Plans Available — Up To 4 Years to Pay.

The old saying "A civilization may be judged by the way they CARED for their dead" is coming back after decades.

Ancient history would be largely a myth but for the way the dead were cared for.

The magnitude of this Memorial is outstanding. It is by far the most modern, bold development conceived in this section.

IT IS WISE TO ACT NOW

All spaces will be reserved prior to date of construction. Therefore; space in the Garden Memorial are limited to those who make selections before construction begins.

Without any obligation on my part . . . I would appreciate full information on the Garden Memorial.

Records Ease Tax Filings

Taxpayers who kept good financial records last year should have no trouble preparing their 1972 Fedeal income tax return, A. P. Andrews, administrative officer of the Temple office of Internal Revenue Service stressed today. Complete records are especially important, he said, to taxpayers who elect to itemize deductions in filing.

Accurate expense records, such as cancelled checks, receipts, records of contributions, are essential if a taxpayer's return is selected for audit. All records should be retained for as long as they may become material in the administration of any internal revenue law.

Another advantage, he declared, is that taxpayers with good records can complete and mail their Federal tax returns as soon as they receive their W-2 withholding tax certificates, thus eliminating last-minute searches for such papers as the April 16 filing deadline draws near.

He also suggested that, through 1973, records and receipts should be accumulated to ease the tax filing for 1974. A final tip: A copy of the previous year's return is one of the best guides for preparing the current return.

MHB To Dedicate New Student Center

More than 2,500 guests have been invited to participate in the dedication of the $800,000 Mabee Student Center on the campus of Mary Hardin - Baylor College in Belton, Texas, on Saturday, February 3.

MH-B President Bobby E. Parker will formally dedicate the Mabee Student Center in ceremonies scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Parker said the center is one of the most modern in the Southwest, and "marks the start of a new era for Mary Hardin - Baylor."

TSTI Students Learning To Fly

By Sharon Mayhugh

WACO

The 26 State Tech students learning to fly can do just that with both feet on the ground since the recent purchase of a flight simulator for the James Connally Campus.

The equipment was purchased by TSTI as surplus material from Delta Airlines after students in the aviation fraternity, Alpha Eta Rho, found out about its availability.

They have spent several months putting all the pieces of the simulator into working order. Now totally assembled and in use, the unit is valued at $2,500, said Pat Brown, chairman of the aircraft training program at State Tech.

The simulator is used by both new and advanced students enrolled in the two-year technology on the James Connally Campus. Brown said the first year students use the simulator for orientation and familiarization with the cockpit of an airplane.

Advanced students use the equipment in learning to fly totally on instruments. The simulator has a cover or hood that can be closed to give the student a feeling of verdigo. Brown said with the hood in the closed position a student can give his full attention to the cockpit.

Part of the device is a control panel through which the instructor feeds signals to the student. In this manner, the student can respond to programmed problems transmitted into the cockpit.

Hours in the flight simulator are credited to the student just as those spent in the air, Brown explained. A student must complete a total of 26 hours in the simulator for the two-year program, but he must also have 220 hours credit in the air.

Brown said the flight simulator is very economical for students because they do not have the cost of the use of a plane.

The flight simulator has been officially accepted by the FAA, and is being used for the first time this trimester at TSTI.

Accent on Health

Good health is a prized possession--something to be sought by those who don't have it and something to be held onto by 'those who do.

As in the case of a communicable disease, says the State Health Department, it is much wiser and easier to keep a person from having a preventable disease than it is to treat the victim.

During 1973 preventive health services will be extended to thousands of children in Texas through an agreement between the State Health Department and Department of Public Welfare.

The new title for this program is "early and periodic screening, diagnosis and treatment" for certain Texas youngsters who are on aid for dependent children rolls.

The State Department of Public Welfare is responsible for administration of the Texas Medical Assistance Program, and consequently, has responsibility for implementation of the periodic screening program.

But, the State Health Department has staff and experience in this field, particularly in providing regular maternal and child health and crippled children services.

Through a cooperative arrangement between the two big state agencies, the State Health Department soon will begin screening children who are eligible for medical assistance. Children who are found to be in need of more definitive diagonosis and treatment then will be referred by the Welfare Department ot practicing physicians and other appropriate sources for such services.

Although the Texas Medical Assistance Program currently provides diagnostic and treatment of disease in children will have a significant impact upon the lives of these children now and in the future.

State Health Commissioner Dr. James E. Peavy said the program can have a tremendous effect on what could be long-term illnesses. "This program will allow us to catch these defects now, while they are still amenable to treatment," he said.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Studying the Brain

The human brain continually produces electrical waves as brain processes occur. Some, such as those that control heartbeat, are subconscious. Others give instructions to muscles to hold you upright in a sitting position; some instruct the eyes to focus; and others are involved with abstract thoughts.

This electrical activity of the brain provides a highly important method by which researchers can study the brain and how it works, using a complex instrument known as the electroencephalograph, or EEG.

Attached to the head by pasted-on-electrodes, the EEG painlessly tells the scientist much about the signals our brain produces in response to the things we see and hear and touch.

Brain wave recordings also help in the diagnosis of medical or physiological conditions that prevent the brain from working properly.

Psychiatrists and psychologists are also studying the brain via the EEG, seeking physiological indicators of the kind of disordered thought processes seen in mental illness. They are compiling a great deal of information, which has to be accumulated in massive quantities and analyzed to provide findings useful in research.

Although this has not resulted so far in highly effective diagnostic tests or other measures to help the mentally ill, there is considerable promise in such brain function studies and the data being compiled, bit by bit, may lead to future clinical measures useful in finding or treating mental illness.

Slowly, but surely through fundamental research, we are learning about the processes through which the body and mind gain access to and handle new information and what makes normal perception normal.

Ultimately, when we better understand the wide range of normal processes of perception and brain function in all of its various aspects, we will be able to return mentally ill persons to useful lives and to prevent mental disorders from striking as they do today.

Governor Calls For Stiff Pusher Penalty

By Lars-Erik Nelson

NEW YORK

In a darkened, red-walled room, a large white globe cast deep shadows into the wise young faces of a group of former narcotics addicts, seated in a circle and talking about a plan that would have put most of them in jair for life.

The plan was put forward by Governor Nelson A. Rockerfeller in his "state of the state" message to the legislature at the beginning of the year. It would punish drug sellers more harshly than murderers, rapists or kidnappers.

In a voice that rasped with frustration over increased street crime and years of ineffectual efforts to control drug addiction, Rockefeller demanded that mandatory life sentences, with no hope of parole, be given to any adult convicted of selling hard drugs--"Heroin, Amphetamines, LSD, Hashish and other dangerous Drugs," as he put it.

The proposal won immediate applause from police groups, conservatives and some prosecutors. It drew equally immediate fire from the American Civil Liberties Union, the Legal Aid Society and liberals generally.

It also evoked condemnation from perhaps the most anti-drug group in the world-reformed narcotics addicts and pushers, who, like ex-alcoholics, are vehement in damning their former poison.

The group in the darkened room with me comprised whites and blacks, ranging in age from 17 to 40. All were outpatients in the final stages of a rehabilitation program run by Odyssey House, a partly tax-supported, partly voluntary organization that gets most of its patients from the courts on a "treatment-or-else" basis.

Most of the ex-addicts were also ex-pushers, who sold drugs to supprt their own habits. They opposed Rockefellers' proposal for a variety of reasons, but chiefly because it wouldn't work.

"I don't think its too well thought-out," a confessed ex-pusher timedly began. "For one thing, he's got hashish on the list but not cocaine or methadone. Hashish isn't a serious drug."

"In 1952 Michigan instituted a 20-year minimum sentence for drug sales, the first in the country," an ex-pusher from Detroit said. "It didn't stop the escalation of drugs. I sold after they passed that law. Usually in Detroit they would let you cop (plead guilty) to posession (a lesser charge.)"

Noting that the mandatory life sentence is stiffer than the current penalty for murder, now that death sentencen have been haltered, one speaker suggested that accused dealers might find it profitable to murder any witnesses against them.

"What's to prevent some dude who's up for pushing from knocking off all the witnesses, even the judge? He gets 25 years to life for murder and with parole he'll be back on the street in eight years."

"It's the largest invitation to wholesale murder that I have ever seen presented to a reasonable state legislature," William Vanden Heuvel, Commissioner of the New York City Board of Corrections, told a calle. "Of course they'll kill witnesses. They'll kill anyone. What is there to tell them not to kill?"

Vanden Heuvel also predicted that juries, knowing that a defendant faced a mandatory life sentence, would be reluctant to convict dope pushers. "Juries have historically refused to convict where punishmens were too severe. There were 10,549 people arrested in New York last year who would have been subject to this life sentence if convicted on the charges for which they were arrested. You'd need 40 times the money now being spent on the courts."

Behind Rockefellers' proposal is impatience on the part of authorities--an impatience shared by millions of urban dwellers--with a rise in crime that has made city streets unsafe to walk and city apartments unsafe to live or leave property in.

Almost everyone agrees that this rise in crime, paticularly over the past five years, is the result of narcotics addicts who must steal to pay for their habits. The trouble is, nobody can prove, with statistics, that there is any real relation between addiction and street crime.

"I can't give exact statistics But...." Officials say when asked how much violent crime is caused by addicts. They then proceed to say that 80 per cent of all crime is drug-related, 50 per cent of all crime is drug-related, most prostitution is drug-related, and so on.

German Firms Converting Waste Into Useful Items

By Ernst Schreyer

BONN

A joint East-West German commission is about to begin work surveying and marking Europe's newest state frontier.

The border dividing East from West Germany runs for over 800 miles from the Baltic Sea to Czechoslovakia. Hitherto, in international law, it has been a dotted line, drawn originally by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in 1944 to demarcate their zones of military occupation in defeated Germany.

The historic inter-German treaty signed last month acknowledged the demarcation line as a state frontier. The commission, due to meet in the second half of January, has the job of tracing the exact course of the frontier and re-aligning it where both sides find it expedient.

Simultaneously, negotiations are pending on three other levels to make ease border restrictions on mail, athletes, cultural organizations and even for streams and other waterways that flow between east and west.

The sports organizations of the two states will endeavor to revive and increase sporting events between East and West German clubs and teams who for more than a decade have only competed against each other under international auspices.

Delegations of the two postal ministries will draw up a new post and communications agreement to facilitate the dispatch of letters, postcards, parcels as well as telephone calls. At the same time the two governments have already started accrediting a large number of journalists from the other side.

On the one hand the border will become more permanent, on the other hand more porous. No major corrections to its present course are expected. But the commission will probably straighten it out here and there for local convenience.

Since it was never planned to be permanent, the three wartime allies followed ancient parish, county and provincial boundaries which had no social relevance and, in many cases, had been forgotten even by local inhabitants.

Dividing Germany on the demarcation line is rather like splitting a jigsaw puzzle down the middle.

In some places the border runs through villages and down the middle of streets. On the Elbe River it is theoretically equidistant from the two banks which is fine, except that the river is constantly shifting its bed so that at certain times ships and barges are technically violating East German territory through sticking to the main channel.

The line abounds in anomalies. In the early days of the occupation Soviet and allied military commanders got together privately and swapped a field or an awkward corner to simplify matters. Over the years these odd pieces became embodied in the territory of one side or the other and formed a constant cource of friction.

For considerable stretches streams and drainage ditches form the border. Where these run across East German no-mans land they are often not properly dredged and drained. This leads to flooding when the winter snows melt. Sometimes East German landmines, laid along the border to deter people from crossing the border illegally to the west, are washed over into West Germany.

Lone Star Gas Comments On RR Commission Order

DALLAS

Lone Star Gas Company today reported receipt of an order issued by the Texas Railroad Commission establishing guidelines for curtailment of gas service to natural gas users in Texas.

The Commission order requires gas utilities in the State to file by February 12 their curtailment programs with the Commission for approval.

As the company understands the order, it establishes a schedule of interim priorities that will have little effect on the way Lone Star is now serving its customers. The order further provides that companies who curtail without contractual rights to do so may not add new customers or increase volumes to existing customers without Commission approval.

For over 20 years Lone Star has included in its contracts with large volume users the right to curtail when necessary to assure uninterrupted service to residential, commercial and other high priority users.

W. C. McCord, president of Lone Star Gas Company, said "Our long-standing policy of uninterrupted service to residential, commercial and other high priority customers whose rates do not provide for routine curtailment is consistent with the Railroad Commission order." He added that the company has designed its system and operations to prevent curtailment of such customers. It is his opinion that Lone Star's ability to add new residential, commercial or industrial customers is not affected by the Commission order.

Lone Star recognizes the need for the Railroad Commission to issue an order of this type because some gas companies in Texas have not in the past provided for the allocation of gas supplies or deliveries during peak periods to their customers.
